

POURED OVER PICTURE

Dripping diluted tempera paint will inspire fun color theory exploration.

What You'll Need 1 sheet white drawing paper, tempera paint (3 colors), 3 small containers, water, sheet pan

Make It Add about 1 Tbs. of one paint color to one small container and add a splash of water to thin the paint; do the same with the other colors. Place the paper on a sheet tray. Pour small amounts of each paint on the paper, and tilt and move the tray to watch the paints streak around the paper. Continue pouring and tilting the sheet tray until the entire paper is covered with swirls, lines, and dots of paint that have blended into each other. To finish, drip the last drops of paint from the cups to create dots of vibrant color.

Source https //www.parents.com/

